

The Kalliojärvi trail is perfect for anybodyne who loves nature but especially for a birdwatchers. If you're up early on a spring morning, you may well hear black grouses' lek and even catch a glimpse of these beautiful birds on the old logging site or at the top of a pine.

This trail is easily reached from the Sammalisto trail. The Kalliojärvi trail leads from the shore of Sammalisto shore, to the right from the top of a small cliff.

It starts with a gentle climb to a young pine forest – and the beginning is easy, and the trail is wide. After a while, it crosses a ditch that is easy to leap over, at least when the weather has been dry.

shoreline. This rock extends some way underwater, which makes for a great place for a swim, though it's also a wonderful location for just basking in the sun. You can recognise the spot by the big rock standing there.

The route keeps following the waterfront but soon arrives at a crossroads and leads to the left. If you want to make a longer circuit and combine your trek with the Pitkäjärvi trail, it is also possible to just go straight on and follow the Ahvenlammi trail from here.

After a gentle ascent the trail goes down again and you

Tip! It is possible to see the following birds along the Kalliojärvi trail. Take a birdwatcher's handbook with you, and mark your spottightings here!

	Black woodpecker	Common cuckoo
	European blackbird	European nightjar
	European robin	Eurasian woodcock
	Common chaffinch	Black grouse
	Great tit	Common goldeneye
	Blue tit	Eurasian wigeon
	Crested tit	Whooper swan
\neg	Lona-tailed tit	Black-throated loon

The trail winds further and then takes a sharp turn to the right just before a large pine. After this, it starts a descent downwards. Soon you will arrive at a forest road, and, after after a dip in the path, a wide trail separates from the road towards Kalliojärvi. A short while later, the lake soon appears behind the trees. The trail continues down to the left, leading to the shore. There is a lean-to shelter by Kalliojärvi that bathes in the morning sunlight.

Passing the shelter, the trail continues along the water. This section starts off rocky but soon becomes easier, and after a brisk five-minute walk, you will come to a flat rock at the will see a small and beautiful swampy lake. There are a lot of different types of berries growing near the path. The trail starts climbing up again and arrives back at the forest road, by some old forest-machinery tracks. The Kalliojärvi trail continues to the left on a wooden pathway.

After this pathway, the trail is easy and wide, and it soon reaches the Sammalisto shoreline. There you will find a popular lean-to shelter and a campfire site, where camping is also allowed. It is only a couple of hundred metres from here back to the starting point of the Kalliojärvi trail.

